EL PASO SUICIDE

Young Man Cuts His Throat With a Pen Knife

El Paso, Feb. 24.—With a small pocket knife Kenneth McCoy cut five gashes in his throat in his room at the Hadley house, corner of Oregon and Franklin streets, last night. One of the cuts reached his jugular vein and he bled to death.

The body was found this morning about nine o'clock by James Taylor, who came to tell McCoy that his wife had just arrived from San Antonio, and wanted to see him. Taylor is the father-in-law of the suicide.

The door was found locked and it was necessary to get a key to unlock it. The dead man was found lying on the bed stripped of all save his underclothes. The bed clothes were stained crimson and on the floor was a pool of blood.

McCoy must have been dead some time for the body was cold. He was last seen about half past nine o'clock last night when he ate a hearty supper brought to him by his father-in-law. At the time he seemed in cheerful spirits and spoke of his plans for the future.

Yesterday morning about ten o'clock McCoy was taken with a sudden stroke of apoplexy in the plaza. He was attended by Dr. Austin who informed those with whom he was connected that it would be unsafe to leave him alone until he was in better condition. The doctor feared that he might take his own life while temporarily out of his head.

One of the lodgers in the Hadley house says that he talked with McCoy late last night and that he was not in his right mind. He claimed to be pursued by men who wanted to kill him. He said they had already taken valuable papers from him.

The cause assigned for the rash act is over-indulgence in liquor. For several weeks McCoy has been drinking heavily and promised yesterday afternoon to stop drinking. This morning a half filled whisky bottle was found in his room. It is presumed that he drank the remainder.

McCoy knew that his wife and child were to arrive in the city this morning, and had planned to meet them. His failure to put in an appearance at the depot aroused suspicion on the part of his father-in-law who went to the room and found him dead. He had one child which is now with his mother at St. Luke's hospital on Missouri street.

The dead man and his wife were to go to housekeeping in this city in a few days. They have been apart for the past three months, on account of McCoy not getting settled. The father of Mrs. McCoy has lived in this city off and on for the past thirty-five years. He said this morning that the dead man must have been out of his head when he took his life.

She Is Strictly In It

Berlin, Feb. 24.—The Crown Prince William is giving his father much trouble on account of an attachment to Miss Gladys Deacon, the American beauty, who is a friend to Consul Duchess Marlborough. The Prince met the girl at Blenheim, invited the Duchess and Miss Deacon to visit him at Berlin. The Kaiser wrote the Duchess politely declining to receive Miss Deacon. The Prince is still madly in love with Miss Deacon. The late Prince Eugene of Sweden is willing to renounce the rights to succession in order to marry her.

Oh yes—lots of know-how; and that's the main point after all.

PROBABLY A MYTH.

No Definite News Regarding the Capture of Alvord and Bravo Juan.

The following is taken from the Prospector under date of Feb. 21:

"It is very probable that Burt Alvord and Bravo Juan, the two much wanted outlaws who were in the Tombstone jail on a charge of train robbery and subsequently escaped, defying capture for over a year, are about to be again placed behind the bars. The sheriff's office since learning of the probable whereabouts of the fugitives in Mexico, set quietly to work in conjunction with Col. Kosterlisky to effect their capture. Today the Sheriff's office was apprised of the arrest of both Alvord and Bravo Juan in Mexico. Sheriff Lewis left for the scene and will bring the prisoners here. Should the prisoners refuse to come without extradition papers, it will only cause a few days delay as the necessary papers will be coming forthwith."

On Saturday morning the Tucson Star contained a telegram from Tombstone which probably originated from the same source.

The REVIEW is inclined to regard the report as a false alarm. S. P. detective W. C. Breckenridge, who was a passenger on Sunday's train en route to Tombstone, and who is very much interested in the capture of Alvord stated that he had heard nothing of the capture.

Col. Kosterlisky is at present in the City of Mexico and it is not probable that the Mexican Rurales would be making an active campaign against Alvord and Bravo Juan unless Col. Kosterlisky was in the lead.

Yesterday Captain Mossman of the Rangers was seen and he said he did not place much faith in the rumor owing to the fact that Col. Kosterlisky was absent in the City of Mexico.

The REVIEW wired to Cananea, Nogales and Tombstone yesterday but no definite information could be obtained.

It may be possible that the capture has been effected in a secret manner. The Prospector says Sheriff Lewis has left for the scene which is laid in Mexico. Mexico is a big country and it may take some time to hear the news.

LEADING PURSUITS

Jewelry Business Well Represented.

C. M. Henkel and M. Schmieding Are Leading Firms—Extensive Stocks of Precious Stones and Jewelry.

One of Bisbee's leading jewelers who is one of our popular and thrifty young men is C. M. Henkel, located at No. 11 Main street. From various misfortunes that often overtake many in their efforts to get ahead in the world, Mr. Henkel was burned out in Cripple Creek, Colorado, and lost every dollar he possessed from years of careful application and hard work.

But imbued with that determined quality of getting on in the world he sought about to retrieve his lost fortune and determined to cast his lot entirely among strangers, and a little later came to Bisbee and launched in business again, having been here about three years. Since coming here he has impressed his customers with his straightforwardness and his entire capacity for doing business. The old adage that a workman is best judged by his results applies to Mr. Henkel, who believing in the future of Bisbee secured a five years lease on the old Leeson adobe. Through this, one of the best business houses was established, as the proprietor of the new jewelry house at once began improvements upon the business house, which was the first of the many improvements that followed, and still are taking place. The first plate glass window in the city of Bisbee was placed in Henkel's jewelry store.

Mr. Henkel naturally feels much satisfaction as a result of his successful career here, for his store shows improvement daily and he continually adds to his stock. He is an excellent workman and turns out a great deal of work daily.

He is also the watch inspector of several railroads in this immediate vicinity. The officials of the El Paso and Southern observing his energy and reputation as a workman appointed him watch inspector for their different lines. He is time inspector also of the Cananea Consolidated Copper Company's railroad. The time keeping qualities of these roads average even with the ordinary eastern railway time.

Mr. Henkel carries a big stock of goods continually, which are very attractive upon the shelf. He makes a specialty of high grade Swiss and American watch work and does a general manufacturing business of watches and general jewelry. He employs eminently competent workmen, one of his men being formerly of Tiffany & Co. of New York. Mr. Nelson followed this trade in Sweden and Germany for three years. M. J. McFarlane of Cripple Creek, Colorado, who has had a lot of experience and is well known in Colorado, is also one of Mr. Henkel's employees.

It would be hard to find so all-around, competent and progressive a business man as C. M. Henkel. From practically nothing he has in a short time become one of the leading business men in Southern Arizona. Mr. Henkel is a member of the I. O. O. F., recently demitting from the Cripple Creek lodge of Colorado. He is very popular.

One of Bisbee's oldest business men, who has done much for the general welfare and up-building, is M. Schmieding, one of our leading jewelers. Mr. Schmieding came here ten years ago and since that time has enjoyed a big trade.

Mr. Schmieding is a German by birth, living in his native land while he learned his trade, and in 1873 came to the United States. In '80 he came to Tombstone, where he opened up a business for himself and did a big business for years. After the boom fell out of that well known mining camp he came to Bisbee in '93 and has been located here since that time.

The jewelry store of M. Schmieding is located on Main street in a large, commodious building of his own, which is about 80 feet deep. This building is occupied by other businesses having office room here—the front part being occupied for the jewelry department. This store is beautifully arranged and is thoroughly up to date.

Neatly placed around the room are four large glass wall cases well stocked with a diversified line of clocks, beautiful chinaware, colored vases, bronze statues, opera glasses, toilet cases, parlor lamps, etc. There are two large show cases in which the jewelry is kept, being well stocked with new goods. Some weeks ago Mr. Schmieding had the misfortune to be robbed entirely out of his expensive stock, such as diamonds and watches and rings, to the extent of several thousand dollars, all of which has been replaced by an entirely new and expensive stock. The heavy silverware in stock is very fine. Besides the building occupied by the store Mr. Schmieding has a fine residence on Quality hill. He has a wife, a child and a pleasant home. He is a member of the Order of Eagles.

BROUGHT FROM MEXICO

Walter Tremble Wanted in Graham County On a Charge of Rape.

After a long and patient experience with the friends across the border and with the co-operation of the Mexican officials, Captain Mossman and his rangers have at last succeeded in capturing Walter Tremble, who for some six months has been at large and very much wanted by the United States authorities.

The officers traced their man through the southwest from point to point as he fled before the authorities until he crossed the border and was for a time lost track of. He was in several of the mining camps until his identity was absolutely made certain at the Cananea mine.

After some time of parleying with the government of Mexico Captain Mossman left for Hermosillo to consult with the governor of the state of Sonora regarding extradition papers, but unfortunately the governor of the state was absent at the City of Mexico and could not be seen. The attorney general, however, was seen, and after carefully and thoroughly laying the matter before this officer, and receiving assurance that all in his power would be done, Captain Mossman returned to the United States. He promptly received the papers after returning to Bisbee, connected with the fee of $50 for translating, which gave the American officials clear sailing. Mr. Mossman at once telephoned to Cananea to arrest Walter Tremble, which was done. He was carefully looked up at once and heavily guarded, and later when it was discovered by the Mexican officers that they were in possession of a criminal arrested under a very serious charge they doubled their guards and placed three men upon the roof.

Upon the arrival of the American officers the prisoner was turned over and he was brought back to the United States and lodged in the city jail at Bisbee. The sheriff of Graham county was telegraphed that his man was here and he is expected to arrive today to take his prisoner to Solomonville, where he will await trial. The officers of New Mexico have been informed of the capture of Tremble, as he is said to be wanted there for another offense.

The crime for which Walter Tremble is wanted in this territory, and for which extradition papers were issued, is rape committed on a thirteen year old girl who now resides at Duncan, as the adopted daughter of J. Hill, a deputy sheriff at that place.

The crime is supposed to have been committed about six months ago, but the authorities never learned of the circumstance until two months ago, when the young girl told her story. Sheriff Parks of Graham county and J. Hill of Duncan were in Bisbee about six weeks ago on the trail of Tremble and located him at Cananea. J. Hill made a trip to Cananea and picked out his man, then steps were taken to secure the proper papers. Negotiations were carried on through Captain Mossman of the Rangers, and on Saturday he was advised that the man Tremble was under arrest at Cananea.

The young girl's story, as gleaned by a REVIEW reporter, is very pathetic, and if true, brands this man Tremble and his wife as creatures bereft of all decency and deserving of the most violent punishment.

Graham county authorities are positive that they have sufficient evidence to fasten the crime on Tremble.

Assayist Blown to Atoms.

Victor, Feb. 24.—Five assay offices here, two in Golden and one in Cripple Creek were blown up with dynamite early this morning. The loss is $6,000. One woman jumped out of a window and was badly hurt. It is believed to be at the instigation of heavy mine owners in the district, who lose $2,000,000 annually through thefts of high grade ores which assayers buy and ship. The whole district supports the effort to get rid of the evil.

Fatal Shooting and Suicide.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—George Childers, a stenographer, shot dead Henry Meyer and wounded four others in the family, and killed himself. He became engaged last Tuesday to Loan Meyer who demanded money to start to house-keeping. Childers yowed he would kill the whole family.

Clark Mines Sold

Butte, Mont., Feb. 24.—U. S. Senator W. A. Clark sold his Colusa Parrot group of mines to the Amalgamated or Anaconda company. The consideration is withheld but the price is understood to be in the millions.

THE TRAMWAY KING

Charles T. Yerkes As-tounds the British.

How an American Has Revolutionized London's Street Railway System.

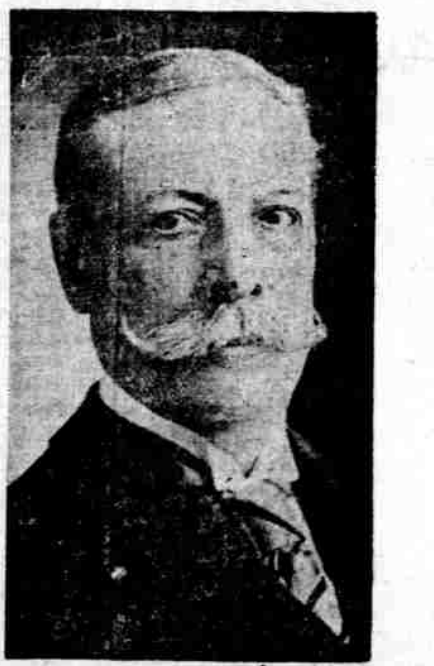

After a flying visit to this country Mr. Charles Tyson Yerkes has returned to London, where he has astonished the people of that staid old city by the celerity with which he is transforming its street railway system. Mr. Yerkes' visit to his native land was for the purpose of disposing of his newspaper property in Chicago.

During the eight or ten months Mr. Yerkes has spent in England he has succeeded in making himself regarded as one of London's benefactors. In three years, if his plans do not go awry, there will be in existence in the English metropolis a system of street transportation, both under and above ground, that will materially benefit the working people by furnishing cheap and rapid communication between the city and the suburbs. This scheme is all of Mr. Yerkes' own initiative, and the result will enable the masses, now compelled to live in crowded tenements, to find homes in more congenial quarters in the country.

Last March Mr. Yerkes went to London on the mission which promises so much for London's population, both rich and poor, for it will be possible under the new system to shoot from the residence district of the wealthy into the business center by "deep level" expresses in one-quarter of the time required at present.

Since Mr. Yerkes has been in London he has accomplished more in the direction of adequate passenger transportation than all the railway men in England together since the first rail was laid in Great Britain, and this in spite of many drawbacks and delays due to disputes over the methods of traction to be employed.

The "tramway king," as he is known in England, is not the type of Yankee hustler that the British railway men expected. He never seems to be in a hurry, and his voice is pitched in moderate tone. Although liked and respected by his new business associates, these gentlemen were much offended on his arrival by the freedom with which he discussed his plans in the newspapers and told the public what he was going to do even before he consulted the men who were going to help him do it. This, however, has not prevented Mr. Yerkes from taking the public into his confidence whenever it suited his purpose. As he holds an absolutely controlling interest in his great ventures, his associates have ceased to attempt to guide him in this respect.

In London Mr. Yerkes works as hard as any of his assistants. He is at his desk at 9:30 in the morning, and it is no unusual thing for him to remain there until 8 or 9 in the evening, sometimes prolonging his labors until midnight. He goes over every plan of his engineers and every line of contract he signs. He leaves nothing of this nature to his subordinates. These documents represent transactions involving millions of dollars since his sojourn in London. The men who deal with Mr. Yerkes say he leaves no loopholes for the escape of the other parties to the contract.

When he leaves his office, the tramway king becomes the art connoisseur. He has little time to visit the galleries, though occasionally he leaves business to run up to Bond street or the Haymarket to see and perhaps purchase some picture of particular interest or merit.

When Mr. Yerkes first went to London, he had offices in the Hotel Cecil, although he lived at Clarges's, not wishing to have his business always beside him. There Mrs. Yerkes dispensed hospitality. Her beauty and cleverness and the richness of her costumes were the envy and admiration of London's smart set. As yet Mr. and Mrs. Yerkes have made no bid for social distinction. A very serious illness has kept Mrs. Yerkes an invalid during the greater part of her stay in the English capital, and her husband has been so absorbed in business as to leave him little time for social pleasures.
